

Consumer Spending is Solid for Now, with Weakness on the Horizon

U.S. retail sales rose +0.4% in April, below the +0.8% median forecast, but a respectable rebound after a -0.7% revised drop in March. Seven of 13 spending categories increased in April, up from three.

Scott McIntyre

Read the full article

Read more Economic Commentary