

Early Q1 GDPNow Hints at (Still Unlikely) Recession

The Atlanta Fed's real time measure of first quarter GDP, which plunged from a robust +3.9% on February 3rd to -2.8% over a span of four weeks, is still signaling negative growth as of yesterday with a GDPNow reading of -2.4%. Much of this apparent weakness has to do with a sharp rise in the trade deficit, which primarily reflects U.S. companies front-running tariffs by importing necessary goods before prices rise.

Scott McIntyre

Read the full article

Read more Economic Commentary