

Lost Service Sector Jobs on Verge of Return

Yesterday, the Department of Labor reported initial jobless claims fell from 781k to 684k for the week ending March 20th. Although these first-time filings for state unemployment benefits are still more than three-times the pre-pandemic level, last week represented the first time since the pandemic began that new claims were below 700k.

Download the full article

Read more Economic Commentary