

The Coiled Spring of Pent-Up Demand

In this morning's economic releases, U.S. personal income for January rose +10%, the highest percentage increase in nine months according to data from the Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA). Government transfer payments were up +52% in January, reflecting receipt of individual benefits afforded by the $908 billion pandemic relief package passed in December. Also this morning, the BEA reported January personal spending rose +2.4%, the sharpest rise in seven months.

Download the full article

Read more Economic Commentary