

Fed Signals September Shift and Tax Threat Resurfaces

- A September rate cut appears increasingly likely after Fed Chair Powell signaled a shift in policy and acknowledged rising economic risks.
- Municipal bonds still offer attractive yields and strong relative value, reinforcing urgency to act before the Fed moves and the opportunity fades.
- While not under immediate threat, the municipal bond tax-exemption—recently reaffirmed in the One Big, Beautiful Bill Act—is once again facing scrutiny. A new memo from the Economic Policy Innovation Center calls for its repeal, signaling potential future challenges for infrastructure financing. This development underscores the importance of continued vigilance and proactive advocacy.
