

Yields Climb as Buyers Retreat in Front of Fed Meeting

Bond yields continue to increase at an unprecedented pace as Fed officials meet this week to discuss the most appropriate strategy to combat a spike in inflation expectations. The entire curve has shifted abruptly higher over the last three weeks, with the majority of the sell-off occurring over just the past several days. The most recent trigger was Friday's release of the May CPI report which showed inflationary pressure was building instead of fading. This shouldn't have been too big a surprise as it was apparent that everyday prices for gasoline, groceries, apartment rent, airfare and autos were still climbing.

Three days ago, the futures market was pricing in 50 bp rate hikes for both the June and July FOMC meetings, mirroring the policy stance Fed officials had telegraphed for weeks. After the CPI report, at least one Wall Street firm decided a 75 bp move on June 15th was more appropriate. At the time, this raised eyebrows. Just two days later, the futures market has fully priced-in a 75 bp hike for June and nearly 75 bps for July as well. The 12-month Treasury bill, normally a stable investment subject to minimal market risk, was yielding 1.96% on May 30th, 2.26% before the CPI report three days ago, and 3.02% this morning.

Purely in terms of economic data, it's hard to justify a market reaction of this magnitude, but from a psychological viewpoint it makes more sense – there simply aren't enough buyers. This gets compounded by the fact that QE has started to unwind itself. The Fed is no longer buying securities to support the market, and in fact has now begun to shrink their massive bond portfolio. Investors are expected to absorb the excess market supply, a difficult task when bond yields are grinding higher day by day.

Whereas it would have been a surprise a few days ago if the FOMC announced a 75 bp increase in the overnight target, it would be a bigger surprise now if they didn't. Fed officials, in the midst of a 10-day pre-meeting blackout period, haven't been able to comment on inflation's recent leg up, but investors have written the script for them.

The balancing act of squashing inflation while keeping GDP from contracting has become much more challenging. The Fed's best hope is convince investors it will be able contain price pressures in the near term, at the same time recognizing that the fix will come, over time, from the supply side.

Scott McIntyre, CFA
HilltopSecurities Asset Management
Senior Portfolio Manager
Managing Director
512.481.2009
scott.mcintyre@hilltopsecurities.com

Greg Warner, CTP
HilltopSecurities Asset Management
Senior Portfolio Manager
Director
512.481.2012
greg.warner@hilltopsecurities.com

Whereas it would have been a surprise a few days ago if the FOMC announced a 75 bp increase in the overnight target, it would be a bigger surprise now if they didn't.

The Fed's best hope is convince investors it will be able contain price pressures in the near term, at the same time recognizing that the fix will come, over time, from the supply side.

Market Indications as of 11:17 A.M. Central Time

DOW	Down -215 to 30,302 (HIGH: 36,800)
NASDAQ	Up 13 to 10,822 (HIGH: 16,057)
S&P 500	Down -8 to 3,742 (HIGH: 4,797)
1-Yr T-bill	current yield 3.05%; opening yield 2.87%
2-Yr T-note	current yield 3.42%; opening yield 3.39%
3-Yr T-note	current yield 3.54%; opening yield 3.51%
5-Yr T-note	current yield 3.54%; opening yield 3.50%
10-Yr T-note	current yield 3.43%; opening yield 3.38%
30-Yr T-bond	current yield 3.41%; opening yield 3.35%

The paper/commentary was prepared by Hilltop Securities Asset Management (HSAM). It is intended for informational purposes only and does not constitute legal or investment advice, nor is it an offer or a solicitation of an offer to buy or sell any investment or other specific product. Information provided in this paper was obtained from sources that are believed to be reliable; however, it is not guaranteed to be correct, complete, or current, and is not intended to imply or establish standards of care applicable to any attorney or advisor in any particular circumstances. The statements within constitute the views of HTS and/or HSAM as of the date of the document and may differ from the views of other divisions/departments of affiliates Hilltop Securities Inc. In addition, the views are subject to change without notice. This paper represents historical information only and is not an indication of future performance. Sources available upon request.

Hilltop Securities Asset Management is an SEC-registered investment advisor. Hilltop Securities Inc. is a registered broker-dealer, registered investment adviser and municipal advisor firm that does not provide tax or legal advice. HTS and HSAM are wholly owned subsidiaries of Hilltop Holdings, Inc. (NYSE: HTH) located at 717 N. Harwood St., Suite 3400, Dallas, Texas 75201, (214) 859-1800, 833-4HILLTOP.